Question 2B (20 marks)Read the text below.

I still remember the day Snowball came into our lives. That day, Dad came out of his car and handed a box to Mum. The latter was astonished.

“What could be in it?” she asked herself.

She quickly walked into the house and opened the box. To her amazement, a small kitten purred at her.

“You bought a cat?” Mum exclaimed. She could not believe her eyes as Dad had never been interested in having pets. He always said that pets required too much work – feeding, cleaning and going to the vet regularly.

“I have,” Dad replied. “I accompanied Uncle John to a pet shop. There I saw this small kitten. It was in a cage with five other kittens. It was smaller than the others and the other kittens were always knocking it over. I could not bear to see it suffer like that.”

My sister and I were delighted to have a pet. The kitten was so white that we called it Snowball. Snowball loved being kept warm. We bought a basket and a big blanket for it. We fed it with warm milk every morning and when it was sunny, we placed it on a cushion near the window.

Snowball was also very mischievous. It liked sleeping in my parents’ bed, causing trouble every time. It would chase away the butterflies in the garden and run after the spiders. Very often, it would hide under the plants in the garden and we would have to go and look for it!

Snowball was the best pet we ever had. When it died, there was an emptiness in the house and in everyone’s heart.
