Question 2B (20 marks)

Read the text below.

Elephants can be found both in Africa and Asia. An African elephant has big, floppy ears whereas an Asian elephant's ears are much smaller.

The Ceylon elephant is an Asian elephant. It lives on the island of Sri Lanka, which used to be known as Ceylon. Ceylon elephants live mainly in thick, green forests. They spend most of their time just eating leaves, grass, the tender shoots of plants and fruit. They love to swim in mud holes and bathe in streams.

A grown-up male elephant is about three metres tall. The older male elephants live by themselves. The females live in herds with their young ones and, sometimes, a few young males. There are usually from ten to fifty elephants in a herd, and the leader is the oldest female.

Once there were many thousands of wild Ceylon elephants. Today there are fewer than 3000 left. Most of the forests where they once lived have been cut down. They cannot find enough food in the few parts of the forest that are left. This is why they sometimes leave the forests in search of food. They cause damage to nearby farms, uprooting plants and vegetables and destroying fields. Many elephants have been shot by angry farmers.

The Ceylon elephants are in danger of extinction unless their natural habitat is protected.

Circle the correct answer for questions 1-10.

Dear Kevin

I hope you and your family are well.

I am this post card from Hong Kong.

I came here with my parents for our holidays. I am myself very much.

Yesterday we went to a zoo. There many kinds of animals there. I saw a panda. It was on a stone, eating a piece of bamboo. I to touch it but the watchmen told us that touching the animals was not Some tigers were watching us from a fenced area. Suddenly they walked us. I was frightened. Fortunately the fence was very thick.

Tomorrow we will go to visit an aquarium. My mum tells me there is a big glass tank of sharks there. There are also types of colourful fish. I will send you some pictures.

We are going to a shopping centre this afternoon. My mum will a new pair of shoes for me.

Hope you are enjoying your holidays.
